

Fish (Occluder) Patterns

Request that the classroom teacher have the children decorate and label an occluder with first and last name in preparation for the screening. This practice helps identify children, particularly soft-spoken or shy children. When the screening is complete, the recorder can attach the fish to the appropriate result's form to be distributed to the parent by the teacher.

This pattern may be reproduced provided that it will not be sold. Suggest to the teacher to use construction or equivalent weight paper.
